

Advertising Database Publication Catalog Print-On-Demand

Ads, catalogs and database materials created in various programs such as Quark, Photoshop, FileMakerPro, etc. are processed through Adobe Acrobat for easy emailing, website posting, printing and professional publication by local and on-the-road product and sales representatives. Specifics such as resolution, password protection, printing, selection, and exporting permissions are fully customizable and Acrobat pages are truly cross-platform.

Used primarily as a thumbnail reference index for stocking shows and showroom redressing. Also used in warehousing and inventory identification.

When using a "live" database such as Access, or FileMakerPro, catalogs can be customized and prepared for specific events and clients. Using multiple layouts in the database, a catalog page can have 1-32 pictures per page, without time-consuming re paginations and layout adjustments. Truly "Print-On-Demand"

Since I shot all items individually and knocked out the backgrounds (alpha-channel), combing pieces into customer specific groups, and/or creating a multi-size set from one on-hand piece.

These sets digitally "created" shooting one item at three angles, and compositing/resizing them in Photoshop. Shadows and Backgrounds are also digitally created on the spot.

Same database, different layout.
Here all the items ordered at a show are printed for the client to forward to her retailers that same day. Designers and buyers can then coordinate their purchases.
